“THE CONSEQUENCES OF THE ECONOMIC CRISIS FOR EAST ASIA”

Wednesday, 9th September 2009

12.30 – 13.00 Buffet Lunch

13.00 – 14.00 Discussion

How has the global economic crisis affected East Asia? What are the political and economic implications, and prospects for recovery in various East Asian economies? And what do economic conditions in Asia mean for the rest of the world? Please join us as Mark Thirlwell presents an Australian perspective on these consequential questions.

Mark Thirlwell began his career as an economist in the Bank of England's international divisions, where he focused mainly on emerging market issues. He also spent some time in the Bank's UK structural economic analysis division. He subsequently joined JP Morgan, where he was a vice president in the economic research department with responsibility for Central and Eastern Europe. Before joining the Lowy Institute, Mark was senior economist at the Australian Export Finance and Insurance Corporation from 1999 to 2003, where he worked on country risk issues, with a particular emphasis on East Asia.
